Washington

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—President Wilson and Secretary Lansing conferred today with the text of the two major issues from Ambassador Page before him, giving details of the attack on the Arabic, as far as they have been known from American sources. The ambassador and consular officials in England have been instructed to send all additional information possible bearing on the physical facts of the tragedy. While the facts are being studied carefully, however, the German explanation will be sought.

NO GERMAN REPORT.
So far the state department has been unable to secure reports from the German foreign office in the case of the Orduna, shelled more than a fortnight ago, and the same delay was experienced in the Leelanaw and Nebaskan cases. Nevertheless, it has been decided that in a matter of this gravity, justice requires that Germany be given full opportunity to present its side of the case before any action is determined on.

Some officials think there are inconsistencies in the statements of survivors, as to what actually took place.
They also take the action of British censors in suppressing details to indicate the sinking of the Arabic, which surrounding the sinking of the Arabic, which would qualify first judgment passed on the act.

Official dispatches today referred only to the casualty list and threw no light on the various features of the attack department seeks information. Considering the department's instructions yesterday to the vice consul at Queenstown to secure affidavits from the Arabic's officers, disappointment is expressed that so far only one such affidavit has been forthcoming. It was a statement from the Zella Cove.

State department officials think full information cannot be reasonably expressed before Monday or Tuesday.

The British government today officially declared that the Arabic was not being conveyed when she was torpedoed by a German submarine.

London reports that an investigation of the sinking of the Arabic has shown that the vessel was a German submarine, neither tried to escape, capture nor the undersea boat, and that there was no warning whatever given before the torpedo was fired.

Arabic Did Not Try to Make Escape, Report

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Although no official report has been received, it is learned on inquiry in official circles, that the British government is satisfied that the Arabic did not attempt to escape, or to ram the submarine which sank her.

This conclusion is the result of statements by Captain Finch and other survivors. All agree that the submarine was not sighted before the torpedo was fired.

TURKS VIOLATED TREATY.
Two days later the Italian cabinet met for the purpose of discussing the relations with Turkey and almost con-cidentally the Italian government began to gather evidence intended to show that Turkey had violated the treaty of Lausanne, by which she pledged herself to withdraw all Turkish troops and officers from the Cyprian district in Tripoli and help secure the submission of the Senate to the treaty in that locality.

Instead of doing so, it was alleged, Enver
Pasha, the Turkish war minister, last March sent his brother, Nuri Bey, to Cyprus to foment rebellion.

On August 1 the Italian ambassador at Constantinople made another protest relative to the attitude of the Ottoman authorities toward Italian subjects. It was stated Italian consul-gates were being detained in Turkey.

At that time tension between Italy and Turkey had become more acute daily.

It was announced on August 4 that Italy had asked for categorical expla-inations concerning Turkey's alleged refusal to withdraw her troops from the Cyprian district in Tripoli and it was charged Turkey was refusing what was

Features of Great Plan
To Handle Cotton Here

Notable features of the warehouse and compress project are as follows:

It will issue warehouse receipts anywhere and at any bank with which money may be borrowed on cotton up to 7 cents a pound.

It will issue a receipt on a single bale of cotton to individuals who are not customers of the Central Bank and Trust corporation.

The compress, which will be the most remarkable in the country, and the warehouse, which will be concrete, will cover forty acres of ground.

A total of 200,000 bales will be shipped from Atlanta and will be one of the leading cotton centers of the south.

The compress and warehouse combined will cost approximately $500,000. The compress and several of the warehouses will be completed by October 15. There will be capacity for 200,000 bales.

A significant feature of the announcement is that the warehouse company will issue warehouse receipts on cotton, with which money may be borrowed at 6 percent per annum, and at a rate of 6 percent per annum, unless the condition of the money market should change this rate to 7 percent.

The enterprise will be started and carried forward by the Central Bank and Trust Corporation.

Later, as soon as a charter can be obtained, which will be turned over to a corporation, to be known as the Central Bank and Trust

Corporation, whose capital stock will be approximately $1,000,000.

described as her usual policy of procrastination.

NOT AN ULTIMATUM

In official circles in Rome the feeling was that Italy's last note to Turkey was almost an ultimatum. It then was reported that a declaration of war by Italy would be accompanied by the sending about 150,000 men to the aid of the Franco-British force on Gallipoli peninsula.

It was announced August 19 that a strong squadron of fast Italian cruisers was in readiness to sail from Tarento, Italy, at moment's notice. It was stated that warships probably would be sent against Turkey if the latter declined to satisfy Italy's demands for release of Italian subjects held in the Ottoman empire.

At a meeting of the Italian cabinet Friday Baron Sonnino, the foreign minister, presented an exhaustive report on the Turkish situation. He declared Turkish provocations had become intolerable. The cabinet's decision was secret but later it was learned that the Italian ambassador at Constantinople had been instructed to hand to the Porte a note asking for a formal categorical statement as to departure of Italian troops from the Gallipoli peninsula. "The note," Sonnino stated, "was not in the nature of an ultimatum and it only was expected Saturday."

British Submarine Gets

German Cruiser in Baltic

PETROGRAD, Aug. 21.—(Via London).—A British submarine has torpedoed a German cruiser in the Baltic sea. This announcement is made in official statement.

Three Russian Ships

Are Sunk by Germans

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—(Via London).—Three Russian warships were sunk by German submarines in the Baltic sea. The Russian ships were small vessels, but they were carrying a large amount of ammunition.

Two other German warships were put out of commission during the engagement. One ran ashore and the other was damaged.

The Russian vessels which were sunk were the gunboats Sivuch and Koreita, and a torpedo boat. The German ship was sunk or put out of commission was the German boat. The damaged German boat was escorted to port.

A statement from the German admiralty concerning the battle reads as follows:

"Our Baltic naval forces penetrated the Gulf of Riga after mine sweepers had swept the mine field and cleared the mine obstructions. In the outcome engagements were developed between the Russian torpedo boats of the Emir Pucharski class were destroyed and other torpedo boats, among them the Novik, and one large vessel were severely damaged while retreating."

"On the evening of the 19th, in Moon sound, the Russian gunboats Sivuch and Koreita were sunk by artillery fire and torpedo boats. After heavy resistance forty members of the crews, including two officers, some severely wounded, were rescued by our torpedo boats."

Three of our torpedo boats were damaged by mines. One was blown up and ground and one was escorted to port."

"The Sivuch and Koreita were sister ships of 857 tons displacement. They were 215 feet long, 36 feet beam and 8 feet draft. They were armed with 4.7-inch guns and four 3-inch guns. Their complement was 140 men each."

Berlin Announces New

Conquests Over Russians

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—(Via London).—The Germans have captured the Russian town of Bielsk, twenty-five miles south of Bialystok, and have driven the Russian over the Biala river, according to official announcements today from the German army headquarters staff.

The text of the statement is as follows:

"In the western theater of war nothing has more importance than the capture of Bielsk. The Russian army group of Field Marshal von Hindenburg, the 1st, 2nd and 3rd armies, and six machine guns were taken. South of Kovno the Russian army group of Field Marshal von Hindenburg is retreating in an easterly direction."

Near Gdovle and Sedlitz Russian positions were stormed. In the fighting west of Tykocin the Russians lost 610 prisoners, including five officers, and four machine guns.

The army of General von Gallwitz took Bielsk and south of that place drove the Russians over the Biala."

The army group of Field Marshal von Hindenburg broke the renewed resistance of the enemy yesterday afternoon and evening, and since early this morning the Russian army has been in retreat. More than 1,000 prisoners have been taken."

The army group of Field Marshal von Hindenburg has penetrated near the Kozelsk sector and from the mouth of the Bug to Pulva. The enemy continued to retreat. Near Brest-Litovsk the east of Vlodava further progress was made."

Reported Opinion of Italian Government

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The Italian government, says a Reuters dispatch from Rome, has sent to all its representatives abroad a circular dispatch setting forth the questions at issue between Italy and Turkey. The dispatch closes with the words:

"In view of these obvious infractions of categorical promises made by the Ottoman government and following upon our ultimatum of August 3, provided by evasions of the Ottoman government, particularly with regard to the cable message of the Italian government from Asia minor, the Italian government has sent instructions to its ambassador at Constantinople to declare war upon Turkey."

Only Small Russian Ships Defending Riga

PETROGRAD, Aug. 21.—(Via London).—The newspaper Ruskaya Invalida states that the Russian fleet in the Baltic is not in the Gulf of Riga. The Gulf of Riga, the newspaper declares, is defended by mines and small warships.

Russians Admit No Losses in Gulf of Riga

PETROGRAD, Aug. 21.—(Via London).—The Russian official statement follows: "During the fighting in the Gulf of Riga Wednesday, Thursday and Friday the enemy's losses were not less than 2,000 men and 100 ships."

"A British submarine successfully torpedoed a German cruiser in the Baltic sea."

"On land, on the front from Riga to the lower Vistula, there has been no change. In the direction of Kovno, our troops held up the enemy's offensive on the railway line between the two armies."

"Between the Narva and the Bug on the front Ostrovets-Brest-Litovsk the Russian showed the most important change of yesterday. Our troops repulsed a series of particularly fierce attacks in the region of Riga and not only the enemy enormous losses. On the Bug in the region of Brest-Litovsk, there was no important change. At Novogorodsk there was violent fighting during Thursday night, the Germans making an assault against the citadel on the right bank of the Vistula.

"The rest of the front there has been no change."

The Russians apparently admit no losses in the Gulf of Riga battles. A statement issued by the Russian government declared the Russian gunboats Sivuch and Koreita and a torpedo boat were destroyed and were being managed by the German submarine.

Story of Lost E-13 Told

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The sinking of the British submarine E-13, whose loss was made known by a statement yesterday, was told in an announcement from the admiralty today as follows:

"A report has been received from Lieutenant Commander Layton, commanding the submarine, that the submarine was sunk by a German submarine in the Danish island of Saltholm was published yesterday. The lieutenant reported that the submarine was grounded in the early morning of August 19. All efforts to refloat her failed."

"At 5 o'clock a Danish torpedo boat approached the submarine and fired at her. The submarine was allowed twenty-four hours to get off."

"At 10 o'clock the submarine was towed to the shore and remained close to the submarine until the morning of August 20, when she was towed to the shore."

"At 3 o'clock while the three Danish torpedo boats were anchored close to the submarine two German torpedo boats approached from the north and fired at her. The submarine was allowed twenty-four hours to get off."

WILSON AND LANSING CONFER OVER CRISIS COUNTRY NOW FACES

The Arabic, instead of attempting escape, had been slowed down for the purpose of ascertaining whether assistance could be given to the submarine.

British officials told the idea that the Arabic was being used to run the submarine. They said that by doing so Captain Finch would have been almost certain to strike the Lusitania and wreck it on its own ship.

Statements received maintain without exception that no warning was given by the submarine.

An amended list of passengers lost on the Arabic gives a total of sixteen which, with the forty members of the crew lost, gives the number of dead at fifty-six.

An amended list of the missing members of the Arabic crew places the number at 21, instead of 40, as previously given.

Thirty-Nine Lost Lives in Sinking of Arabic

QUEENSTOWN, Aug. 21.—Thirty-nine persons lost their lives in the sinking of the steamer Arabic, the White Star line announced last night after completing an investigation of the disaster.

It is estimated that the returns from railroads and public utilities will reimburse approximately the same amount, so that the country's total revenue will be increased.

This Week In Atlanta Movies

Comedies Outnumber Dramas, but Programs Are Significant for the Many Big Feature Pictures Starring Famous Stage Favorites

IN ATLANTA'S ten motion picture theaters this week will be seen twenty-four big feature films; thirty comedies, three of them five reels; twenty-four dramas of two reels or less; and installments of three serials. And this means that close to fifty favorites will be started, with special choice for everybody to see just whom and what he wants.

The stars at the Alamo 2 are William Farnum, Janet Beecher, Robert Warwick, Theda Bara, Albert Chevalier and Julia Swayne-Gordon. The stars at the Strand are Olga Petrova, Emmy Wehlen, Vivian Martin and Robert Warwick, Madam Petrova appearing in "The Tigress," a feature film of the variety type.

The Savoy's big picture is "Jewel," a five-reeler starring Ella Hall, produced by Weber and Smalley, co-authors of "Hypocrites" and "Scandal." The Alpha also shows "Jewel" and announces the engagement of Zella Dunn, singing comedienne.

The Grand has two long comedies, one starring Sam Bernard, and a drama, "The Majesty of the Law." The Georgia has Viola Allen in "The White Sister," Betty Nansen, Kathlyn Williams, Hazel Dawn and other stars.

The Vaudeville's Monday picture is a poem-play by William S. Hart in which he takes the lead. The Vaudeville also has two Mutual Masterpictures, two serials and a new Keystone comedy.

The Alamo 1 has several Keystones, Charlie Chaplin pictures and a Hart play.

The Victoria has, among other offerings, three big features, "Salambo" and a war picture and Klein's "The Naked Truth." Montgomery's recent theater out Peachtree street near North avenue also has a good program.

JANET BEECHER, WARWICK.
THEDA BARA AT ALAMO TWO.
William Farnum, Janet Beecher, Robert Warwick, Theda Bara, Albert Chevalier and Julia Swayne-Gordon are the heroes and heroines of this week's pictures at the Alamo Two, supported by capable cast.

Farnum, "the man with the $100,000 face," is the star in "A Fool There Was," a five-reel Fox Film feature, telling how a young spendthrift plays the white light with he wastes his fortune away.

"Fine Feathers" is the big production in which Janet Beecher stars. It is at the Alamo Two Tuesday, produced by the World Film corporation, a double role, that of the young French patrician and the rogue of the gutters of Paris.

Theda Bara is back again in "A Fool There Was." By repeated requests Manager Murray was prevailed upon to bring this famous Fox feature to the Alamo Two again Thursday. But it's not surprising, considering the fact that it ran for 22 weeks in Boston.

Albert Chevalier, "The Middleman," Friday and Julia Swayne-Gordon in "The Tigress," a three-reel Vitaphone drama, Saturday, complete the week's program.

OLGA PETROVA, "THE TIGRESS."
STAR ON STRAND BILL TWO DAYS.
Olga Petrova, Emmy Wehlen, Vivian Martin and Robert Warwick are the stars at the Strand this week, featured in big productions with the Strand orchestra furnishing appropriate music.

Olga Petrova is at the Strand Monday in "The Tigress," in five acts. Manager Ralph de Bruler fairly moved heaven and earth to get this film for Atlanta, owing to litigation over it in the courts, it could not be booked for any other cast of the Mississippi, so the engineering director of the Strand had it brought here clean from Portland, Ore. but they say it's worth the $100,000-mile shipment, for a star like Madam Petrova in the lead, this powerful, soul-stirring story of a one-year-old girl driven to a life of lustful revenge by the treachery of a Russian count will fascinate the spectator from the first flicker on.

A story that stirs the heart strings, they call "When a Woman Loves," the feature at the Strand Wednesday and Thursday, in which Emmy Wehlen, the exquisite Viennese actress, is the star. This drama is in five acts, 200 scenes, and required three months of painstaking effort to complete.

Besides Pathe Weekly's production of the Woodmen of the World's convention at Hawkinsville, Ga., the Strand Friday will offer Vivian Martin in "The Little Dutch Girl," a World film feature in five acts. In this picture Mrs. Martin, the recognition of winsomeness, grace and beauty, takes the part of a homeless foundling who develops into a pretty maiden whose foster father dies, leaving her alone in the world with a few coins, a suitcase and a flower girl.

Robert Warwick, the great actor of the World Film corporation, is the hero in "His Stolen Voice," a five-act feature at the Strand Saturday.

ZELLA DUNN, COMEDEMIE.
MAKES DEBUT AT THE ALPHA.
Fresh from triumphal engagements in the east, Zella Dunn, comedienne, singing comedienne, opens a week's engagement at the Alpha Monday, succeeding Billy Beard, who has gone to Keith's Fifth Avenue theater in New York.

Zella Dunn is new to Atlanta, but those in other cities who have seen her say she is the real thing. She has all the "pep" and vivaciousness of Sophie Tucker, with the charm of Ethel Green and the lure of Princess Raah. Add to this combination a repertoire of brand-new songs and you have Zella Dunn complete. She will sing every day at the Alpha.

A great program of pictures has been booked for the week, beginning Monday with the eighth adventure of "The Broken Coin" and an Imp comedy starring William Garwood and Violet Mersereau. "Lord Berring-ton's Estate," a two-reel Broncho drama, Tuesday, and the last of Pathe's "Who Pays?" dramas will be shown Wednesday. This is "Toil and Tyranny," the story of which appeared last week daily in The Journal.

"Jewel" is Friday's picture. This is a corker. "Jewel" is in five reels, a Broadway feature, and the star is pretty little Ella Hall, this being her debut, as it were, in feature productions. Lois Weber and Phillips Smalley, creators of "Hypocrites" and "Scandal" and other famous films, produced "Jewel," which is a work of art from first to last.

Ella Hall stars again with Bob Leonard at the Alpha Friday in "The Little Blond in Black," a Laemmle drama.

ELLA HALL IN "JEWEL."
BIG FEATURE AT SAVOY.
A little girl named Jewel, with a great big doll under her arm, a wealth of golden hair and a beautiful character which radiates through her countenance, will have to you from the screen of the Savoy theater Tuesday.

And then you will see five reels of the Universal company's triumph in motion picture production, five reels of "Jewel," produced by Lois Weber and Phillips Smalley and starring Ella Hall and Rupert Julian.

Clara Louise Burnham wrote the story, but it remained for the creators of "Hypocrites" and "Scandal" to place the film in all the winning magnitude which is bred within it.

How Jewel won the heart of her cruelly old grandfather, how she snatched a household of hatred and discord, makes a human story, preaches a doctrine of gentleness we are bound to follow, and, incidentally, marks a new pinnacle in motion picture production who yearn for a bigger, better, clearer film.

"Jewel" is a jewel of motion picture production and the fine work of Miss Hall in the role of the sunny little character who "pretends" rather than sees the wickedness of a world about her, makes the picture doubly charming.

On other days the Savoy offers the pick of Universal productions, beginning Monday with the eighth chapter of "The Broken Coin."

BETTY NANSEN, HAZEL DAWN.
VIOLA ALLEN GEORGIAN STARS.
Stars of the brightest are at the Georgian formerly the Montgomery theater, this week there are Madam Tezornova, Viola Allen, Kathlyn Williams, Hazel Dawn and other stars, any one of whom is well worth seeing time and again.

Monday's picture is "Should a Woman Kill?" a "vampire" production starring Madam Tezornova, the fascinating Russian actress.

Viola Allen is the star at the Georgian Tuesday in "The White Sister," pictured in five reels by the V-L-S-B corporation. The spell of sunny Italy was woven on Marion Crawford when he wrote "The White Sister" and no other actress but Viola Allen could have so deliciously interpreted the heroine's part.

Betty Nansen is at the Georgian Wednesday. The picture is "The Fallen Idol," a Paramount production, and the famous Swedish emotional actress here tells some of her best work since she entered the silent drama.

"The Rosary," celebrated in song and story, has been pictured at least and is booked for the Georgian Thursday. Kathlyn Williams is the star and a great deal supports her.

A dainty and wistful little person is Hazel Dawn and it is a dainty and wistful little comedy-drama in which she stars at the Georgian Friday, "Niobe" is its name.

SOME OF THE WEEK'S BEST. Number One is Ella Hall, in "Jewel," Savoy, Tuesday. Number Two is a scene from "The Girl From His Town," Vaudeville, Wednesday. Number Three is a scene from "The Face in the Moonlight," Alamo Two, Wednesday. Number Four is Olga Petrova, Strand, Monday and Tuesday in "The Tigress." Number Five is Lydia Borelli in "The Truth," Victoria, Wednesday.

Case-Plays

WHO SAYS they never come back? Los Angeles dispatches note that Jim Jeffries, who figured gloriously in a fight at Reno, on a glorious night of yesterday, has signed with a motion picture company and will take the part of a lumber jack in a play starring Francis X. Bushman.

ATLANTA PEOPLE like features and comedy, stage stars on the screen and are tired of serials. That is the impression one deduces from the film part of the national trade conditions in the current issue of the Motion Picture News.

OF COURSE we had to have "Trilby" in the screen before the list of "case plays" were complete. Clara Kimball French and Wilton Lackaye are the stars in George Du Maurier's famous novel pictured by World Film.

IN SELECTING A MOVIE by Henry Warner Harrison to can, it is rather remarkable that the directors should have "Captivating Mary Carstairs." This is not half so well known as "Queed," "My Vis Ryan" or even "Angelica's Business," yet it will be released in the near future.

IT'S NOT SURPRISING that "The Two Orphans" should be filmed, but why Theda Bara in the leading role, so set by Fox? Next to be expected is Charlie Chaplin in "Human Hearts" and "Way Down East" starring W. M. Anderson.

BILLIE BURKE is now at Catalina in the Pacific coast, and will rehearse daily at the Nympha studios for a picture to be released soon. It's a sea story, and a number of athletic young men have offered their services as life guards to Miss Burke.

KITTY GORDON, whose back rather startled Forsyth audiences last winter, is now in Los Angeles, and is reported to be dickering with several directors who have offered her big contracts.

THE STRAND THEATRE'S musical program this week has been announced. Monday and Tuesday Rossini's "Overture" and "The Barber of Seville" will be featured. Wednesday and Thursday, Mozart's "The Magic Flute" and "The Marriage of Figaro" will be presented. Friday, "Hungarian Fantasy" by Moser; Saturday, "A Chinese Episode" by Moser.

GERALDINE FARRAR has left Hollywood and Los Angeles in her private car for the east to take up operative work. It was June Miss Farrar signed her famous two-dollar-a-minute contract and reported for work. The production of "Carmen" has been completed and will be released in November.

WHAT MOVIES are coming to Atlanta this fall and winter? In the meantime, the section of today's Journal will find a full list. It's interesting reading.

TAKE IT FROM the Motion Picture News, "Anna Katherine Green's well known story, 'The Circular Staircase,' will be pictured soon." How about "The Woman in the Alcove," Charles Dickens' historical novel, "Ivanhoe," that famous book by Bernard Shaw, "Pillars of the Sky"?

THEY'VE SWATCHED away Helen Holmes' train from her and given it to Helen Gibson, who will star in the "Hazards of Helen" pictures which are the last letter in thrills.

RUMOR has it that Charlie Chaplin and his brother, Syd, the Gussie guy in Keystone comedies, are going to form a little vaudeville team and open in Broadway.

THOMAS DIXON, whose book, "The Man from Nowhere," inspired the Birth of a Nation, is now directing a motion picture company on the coast which is filming "The Fall of a Nation," the subject being the invasion of the United States by foreign armies.

MISS ALAMEDA HOLCOMBE, the Atlanta girl who won the title of Georgia's prize beauty in the recent contest conducted by the Universal company, has signed a contract with that firm and will go to the coast to appear in movies. This announcement was made Monday at the Atlanta branch of the Universal company, Consolidated Film and Supply company, Rhodes building.

It was also stated that Miss Lois Wilson, of Birmingham, another Universal beauty, had been engaged by the company.

A Fragile Vampire
A little bit of blue-eyed, golden-haired lassie looks anything but vampirish. Yet in the role of the vampire woman she is called upon to play, she is frequently cast for the role.

Rene Aude is the name of the ambitious little actress who in less than two years has steadily climbed to the head of the class. She frankly states that all her other work is as nothing compared to her difficult and emotional part in "The Fox Woman," recently produced by the Mutual studio.

FUNNY MAN AND SINGER

Roscoe Arbuckle, "Keystone Faty," at the top, in "Fatty's Tintype Tangle," Alamo One, Wednesday. At bottom, Zella Dunn, sweet singer at the Alpha all this week.

EIGHT EXHIBITORS VISIT PLAYER PIANO AGENCY

Eight of the most prominent exhibitors in the southern territory were visitors in Atlanta last week. These business men control the circuit of some of the most important picture theaters in this part of the country and were attracted to Atlanta because of the location of the principal exchanges here.

During their visit they were entertained by Eugene Wilder, of the Automatic delivery. Because of the wholesale store of the concern on Pryor street. The exhibitors were shown the advancement in automatic music, starting with the old fashioned electric piano, on to the big modern photo-players, a combination of brilliant sounding pipe organ, piano and orchestra.

Mr. Wilder recorded sales of the newest photo-player instruments for immediate delivery. Because of the connection of the Wilder concern with the great makers, these almost human orchestras can be delivered with unusual promptness.

KID STAR, AGE THREE, STILL LOVES MUD PIES
Full of likable dimples and adorable curves and smiles, the sort of child who reaches out over the lights and clutches the story heart of the crustiest old bachelor in the audience. Only three years old, and already leading lady with such notable lights as Warren Kerrigan and Sydney Ayres. Baby Georgia French is another demonstration of the theory that actresses are born, not taught. Long before she was able to understand the thrills and languorings of the camera she acted every scene in which she was used.

Henry McRae discovered her histrionic talent by taking a big chance and giving her a real part in "The Vagabond Soldier." Since that time she has been in constant demand by some company or other at Universal City. She even fired off a big revolver without the quiver of an eyelid, and in Gibby's "The Ways of Men" called forth unbounded enthusiasm. Notwithstanding the adulation of proud parents and hundreds of friends, this black-haired, blue-eyed tot remains unspooled. She loves dollies and sand pies, and revels in making mud cakes.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN ALMOST MILLIONAIRE, HE SAYS

In Seven Years Movie Fans Have Laughed Him Into a Fortune

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—If people continue to laugh one year more at his antics on the screen, Charlie Chaplin will have a million dollars salted away in the bank, he asserts.

Seven years ago he says he was in London at $1.50 a week, with nothing laid aside.

Laughed into a millionaire in a few years by the American motion picture public.

That's the power of being funny, as demonstrated by the premier comedian of the film world.

Chaplin, who has for a year been with the Essanay company staging his scenarios in the California hills near here, has just contracted to go back with the Mutual people at a salary reputed to be enormous.

Castles built back on his checkered life, Chaplin says it was only a fortunate circumstance that kept him away from being a probable millionaire.

Only his "colossal egotism" saved him from becoming a tragedian instead of a funny man—"possibly a great tragic actor," as he says.

All of us, says Chaplin, are but "poor little mortals" while I'm enacting them. It is to laugh!

In describing his method of staging the imitable Chaplin antics, upon which he is now busied, he says he begins by taking out his big automobile to "amuse the chauffeur." Then he coats his face with brick-brown paint, hops up his baggy trousers, clogs at bit, and by the time the camera begins to click he is enjoying his own comedy as heartily as anyone in the cast.

"My comedies seem to me the funniest thing on earth while I'm enacting them," he confides. "I laugh, the other actors laugh, and often the camera-men chuckle out loud."

His slogan is: Enjoy whatever happens and laugh about it.

HE LOOKS HARMLESS, BUT HE IS ALWAYS VILLAIN

Harry Carey has received the coveted honor of playing opposite the famous Julia Dean, in the forthcoming photo-play "Recklessness," to be produced at the Universal studios.

Harry looks harmless, but invariably he is cast in the role of a scheming, demoralized creature of the underworld, the villain of the picture.

In "Just Jim," a little powerful story of a released convict, Carey was called a released convict, Carey was called a released convict, Carey was called a released convict.

Sale of Whitehall Street Parcel at $300 a Front Feet Is Featured in Real Estate Announcements—Building Has Been Quiet, Although Marietta Street Job Is Encouraging—Agents Now Pushing the Renting Business

The sale of a Whitehall street parcel for $15,000 was featured in Saturday's real estate announcements. The lot, which is the north end of the street 275 feet wide and 131 feet deep, is a frontage of 131 feet and a depth of 131 feet to the railroad.

Except for a large exchange and some residence sales, there were no private sales announced during the week, although agents reported better inquiry. A fair amount of transactions went to record. Building has been quiet, although the announcement Friday that a $30,000 job was in prospect for Marietta street was encouraging. The late developer of apartment houses under construction has resulted in good business for certain classes of material.

As most of the agencies do a renting business also, they are devoting most of their attention to that at present and are not trying to push the sales end.

RENTING REASON.
For renting agents this week will be a busy one, for moving day is on September 1. Some of the agencies report a considerable reduction in the size of their rental lists, and this reduction applies to listings of negro houses, of which, for a long time, there had been an over supply.

This is due, in great measure, to the better employment situation that has come about in the past few weeks, a situation that has benefited common as well as skilled labor.

Fall Dresses for Every Occasion

The new Fall Dresses that we have now ready for your selection are simply stunning. All kinds there are, from the very fine, dressy gowns of Georgette crepe and velvet for formal afternoon and dinner wear, to the sturdy, substantial serge built on simple but very smart lines for ordinary service. Whatever the occasion for which you need special gowns, here are the garments, fresh, new, direct from the best makers of fashions and fabrics.

Serge Dresses show pleated models—skirts and blouses—trimmed with pockets, tabs, dozens of buttons and some leather. The skirts are short and the military trend in trimmings and cut is distinctly noticeable. Combined with taffeta or charmeuse, serge in a very fine, hard-finished weave is used in developing some of the most modish frocks of the season.

Combination of materials extends with beautiful effect into the more expensive line of gowns. One particularly handsome model is of black Georgette crepe fashioned over white charmeuse, with wide bands of black velvet on the skirt and a chic little overblouse of velvet. The waist shows the crepe made over white net gorgeously embroidered in silver thread. The final touch of richness and beauty is given to this gown by the sash-hanger of very handsome passementerie in dull gold and silver tones.

Braiding and embroidery in rich Oriental shades are used a great deal. Beading line of gowns. One particularly handsome model is of black velvet with a bright touch to dark, rather sombre dresses.

The favorite materials for Fall are—

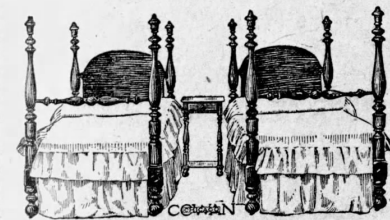

Taffeta Poplin Serge Broadcloth Velour de Laine Crepe Meteor Charmeuse Bengaline Gabardine Velvet Crepe de Chine Georgette Crepe

Dark colors have the strong call for fall. Black and navy lead in demand, with African brown, dark bottle green and the new blackberry shade shown in fair number.

The prices of the frocks, like the styles, offer wide variety of choice—

$15 to $60

Stately, Striking and of Perfect Line

It means much to possess furniture of such a type as this. Elegance and simplicity of style are most agreeably united with a perfection of workmanship that is most compensating. Needless to say that the material upon which designer and craftsman have expended their best efforts is the best. It is mahogany of beautiful figure, exquisitely finished in a dull antique shade.

The Bed illustrated above is a charming example of this Colonial style. Solid mahogany, each post turned from solid four-inch stock. It combines in a singular degree utility, strength and grace. It may be had in single or double size. The price of either size is.....

We illustrate only the Bed. We should greatly enjoy showing you the matching pieces. There is no question about the pleasing quality of them. They have the same refinement of detail and beauty of workmanship as the bed. Completing the suit are—

Dresser.....	$90.00	Chiffonier.....	$63.50
Toilet Table.....			$63.50

In addition, we have the smaller pieces—chairs, bedroom tables, desks—all of which add infinitely to the beauty of a chamber provided with this delightfully designed furniture.

We are especially desirous of bringing this line to the attention of discriminating purchasers. Its sterling worth, from the standpoint both of utility and art, will make strong appeal to them.

A Great Training School for Boys

One of the most urgent educational needs of the South is an increase of academies in which young men may be thoroughly prepared for college in the shortest time, consistent with the best work, and at the lowest cost. In response to this need, Emory University Academy has been established at Oxford, Ga. The object of the foundation is to give to the Southern States a strong school, in the most wholesome and stimulating atmosphere, where the fundamentals of college education will be taught with thoroughness and efficiency.

Buildings and Equipments

The equipment of the Academy is the best possible.

"Seney Hall" will be the home of the Academy, and in this imposing building the students will be instructed in large and well-furnished classrooms.

All non-resident students will be required to room in "Haygood Hall," the magnificent dormitory recently completed and now supplied with every modern convenience. Three members of the faculty also will have their rooms in the dormitory, and thus be in position to assist students in their private studies, as well as in their class-room work. The dormitory is heated by steam, lighted by electricity, and supplied throughout with hot and cold water.

Library and Gymnasium

The splendid gymnasium of Emory College will be open to the use of the students of the Academy, and they will have the benefit also of the college library of 40,000 volumes.

Certified Holstein Cow's Milk for Family Use

Proven by tests that Holstein Milk is the only cow's milk physicians consider suitable for infant feeding, but do you realize it is the very best milk for every family?

Babies thrive on Holstein Milk because it is more digestible than any other milk. The reason is, enough for everyone to prefer it for family use.

In Holstein Milk the mother's amount of butterfat is in the form of minute globules less than half the size of those in ordinary milk. These minute globules are rapidly absorbed, while the fat globules in ordinary milk form large, tough curds that resist digestion.

Holsteins are the best breed of cattle and their milk has the strongest vitality, quality that children and the aged find most satisfying. Use it freely and there will be no doubt in your mind.

Send to our farm for our confidence in our methods of handling milk--guaranteed by Police County Medical Association.

NEAL OF THE NAVY

William Courtleigh, Jr.

A TREAT for fiction lovers and a delight for theatre goers is this fine new story by William Hamilton Osborne, picturized by Pathé and featuring Lillian Lorraine and William Courtleigh, Jr.

THRILLS a-plenty for story readers and picture-goers alike; romance to satisfy the most romantic, adventures for the most adventurous, and the best photoplay art to please the most artistic. A great story and great pictures making Neal of the Navy a most worthy successor to the world famous "ELAINE" and "PAULINE" serials.

Lillian Lorraine

A tremendous volcano belching fire and dealing death and destruction over a wide area;

A great ship caught in the torrent of flame and white hot ashes and burning to the water's edge;

A ship's mate securing by a cowardly crime the fancied security of a floating spar only to become the screaming prey of a shark;

A tiny child left helpless and alone by the great disaster; her only protector a boy not yet in his teens:

A bundle of crumpled papers containing in their faded writing the suggestion of a vast fortune and the incentive for weary wanderings over uncharted seas:

A band of dangerous crooks who stop at nothing to achieve their ends and who have marked the girl for their own and her heritage for their booty:

The life of a boy who enlists as a sailor on one of Uncle Sam's floating fortresses and by pluck, character and efficiency, rises to a commission and a position in the world:

A mysterious and unmapped island hiding beneath its palm-shaded sand mines worth a king's ransom:

Here indeed are the seeds of a wonderful romance — of a story that fascinates, and pictures that will hold audiences spellbound! William Hamilton Osborne, the author of the story, is a famous short story writer and novelist. Among his successes are "The Red Mouse", "The Catpaw", "The Blue Buckle" and "The Running Fight."

Lillian Lorraine is one of the most famous of Broadway's theatrical stars. She was featured in the famous "Follies" for three years and "The Whirl of the World". She has beauty, grace and talent.

The pictures of navy life and scenes will be authentic, being taken with the approval and by the sanction of the Secretary of the Navy.

The House of Pathé, the largest and most famous motion picture house in the world, will release the pictures which have been made by Balboa, under the trade mark of Panama Film.

The Pathé Company has three great serial successes to its credit.

"The Perils of Pauline" and "Who Pays?" were great. "The Exploits of Elaine" was greater.

"Neal of the Navy" will be the greatest.

This Great Story of Love and Adventure Begins in The Atlanta Journal the Week of August 29, in Daily Installments. It will be Shown Every Week at the Vaudette Theatre, Beginning Monday, September 6.

Phils Triumph In Double Bill

Take Both Games From Cubs, Dodgers Split With Reds, Braves Beat Pirates Twice

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—Philadelphia defeated Chicago in both games today, 7 to 5 and 3 to 2. Humphreys, standup pitcher, was the star of the first game and the poor support given the visiting twirlers gave the home team the lead in the second. Demaree repeatedly in trouble, but he was saved by his support.

Aquatic Meet Was Big Success

Large Crowd Watches Athletes Compete in Water Stunts in Y. M. C. A. Pool

Things were doing at the Y. M. C. A. last night of great interest to swimmers, on the occasion of the Seventh Classified Aquatic Meet. All swimmers were present, and the water was a prelude to witness the largest, and perhaps the most interesting meet which has yet been held. Every race was close, there were several ties, and extra heat was made by all the men. The feature and fancy diving event was the first time that the last heat, Bonell and Hartney, who are tied for the record of 10 seconds in this event, were in the same heat. The first event was the plunge for distance, with the result: Class B, Victor Victor, 1st, distance 47 feet; H. P. Westerman, 2nd, and W. H. Lee, 3rd. Class C, H. H. H. Logan, 1st, and A. J. Sater, 2nd. Then came the 25-yard swim, and class B, H. H. H. Logan, 1st, and A. J. Sater, 2nd. Then came the 25-yard swim, and class B, H. H. H. Logan, 1st, and A. J. Sater, 2nd. Yankees Split Pair With Sox

Lose First Then Win Second, Indians Down Mackmen, Red Sox Win Out Over the Barons

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—The White Sox broke even with New York, in a double header today, winning the first after 11 innings, 1 to 0, in a pitch hitting duel between Scott and Caldwell, and losing the second, 2 to 3, because of the great pitching of Fisher.

In the initial game, Murphy walked as a starter in the eleventh inning, advanced on J. Collins' single and scored on E. Collins' safe bunt for a squeeze play.

Joe Jackson, who was purchased from the Cleveland Americans, played center field for the locals today. The scores:

Agogas Lose First of Series

York and Golightly Lock Horns in Pitchers' Battle—Lockhart's Clout Settles Game

Jack Lockhart's homer over the center field wall in the tenth inning broke up one of the prettiest pitchers' battles ever witnessed locally between two major league twirlers, the Atlanta National capturing the first game of the city championship series from the Agogas by a count of 2 to 1.

From the moment the umpires called "play ball" until Lockhart walked home, the game was a stirring battle, with neither having any great advantage. The Bank boys secured three hits off Agogas' pitcher, and in the fifth, one man and walked twice as many.

Jack Lockhart was the star of the game for the Bank boys. Besides playing great ball around the keyhole and winning the contest with a home, he got a double also off York, the first hit of the Bank boys.

York was the star of the game for the Agogas. Besides pitching a three-hit game, he also secured eight assists without a hit, and played a man out. Both at short, also played a nice game, both with the bat and in the field. York was the only Agoga player that made more than one hit. He also scored the only run.

After the Agogas tallied in the fourth, they did not threaten again until the tenth, when the first two men hit safely. But the next two men got out easily, and the one of the two men on the base was thrown out trying to steal.

A large crowd, that packed Mark's college to capacity, witnessed the game. The next game of the series will be played at Brishine park, the home grounds of the Agogas. It is more likely that the same two twirlers that faced each other yesterday will meet the second game.

MODERN MOTOR TRUCK SAVES TIME, TROUBLE AND MONEY FOR USERS

Sure Profits Come from Quicker Method Which Has Replaced Horse-Drawn Vehicles Throughout Country

This is the age of the motor truck, just as it is the age of the automobile; and this is true because it has been found that the motor-driven vehicle is a saver of time, money and energy. The motor truck was not welcomed with wide-open arms by the owners of wagon teams, when the truck first made its appearance—rather, it was regarded with a degree of suspicion. It had to prove itself, make its worth actually a known fact, demonstrate what it could do, before it began to sell.

The motor truck has proven itself to the satisfaction of most men who have a use for its services, and it is the purpose of this article to show how that has been done, how the work that was done with wagons and horses has been lightened and made easier, and, perhaps, to point out to you new ways in which you, the Atlanta business man, or the Georgia farmer, as the case may be, can make the motor truck pay you.

THE WIDE RANGE OF ITS USES

There seems to be no limit to the uses to which the motor truck can be put—it is used with satisfactory results by every class of business man and by farmers who produce different kinds of food products; and the work of all is done better and with greater ease.

The truck farms of counties adjoining Fulton have been brought within an hour of Atlanta's produce exchange by the motor truck; and the same power which has brought the fresh milk and cream of dairies in neighboring communities to within a few minutes of Atlanta's homes. The groceries the housewife orders in the morning, the hat that she buys towards mid-day, the necessities that she sends a rush order for late in the afternoon—they are all delivered to her quickly and in good condition by the motor trucks of Atlanta's business houses.

LAND VALUES INCREASED

There was a time when the value of a farm depended almost entirely on its nearness to the market or shipping point. Now the markets are being brought within range by means of automobile transportation and more land made available.

Not only are motor-driven vehicles being used for the direct transportation of food-stuffs, but they find just as much of a field of usefulness on the farm. In the gathering of the produce, and in the numerous capacities formerly occupied by horses, in the rapid carrying of peaches, tomatoes and other products which are canned, the truck has made it possible to eliminate a tremendous waste and loss in handling. One hundred bushels of wheat or potatoes is now carried to the railroad station five to ten miles distant, and fertilized, lime, feed, lumber, etc., brought back with the same facility with which formerly 20 bushels were carried, and in one-fifth of the time.

A TRUCK FOR EVERY USE

The wide range of sizes in which the motor trucks that are proving such a boon to American business are built, makes it possible for nearly every business man and every farmer to own and operate a truck with profit. For the man who needs a light, small truck, light, small ones are built, and the cost is little; for the man who needs a medium-size vehicle, with a little more horse-power than the smaller ones are equipped with, medium size trucks are built, and the cost is nominal; for the one who needs a large, high-powered machine, these are built, and always the cost is low, when the results to be obtained are considered.

COST OF OPERATION SMALL

The cost of operation, which includes maintenance and upkeep, oils and gasoline, is small when compared with the cost of feeding the number of horses or mules necessary to take the place of the truck.

TRUCK SAVES $1,100 OVER HORSES IN FIFTEEN MONTHS

The Commercial Car Journal tells the story of a dairy farmer who, fifteen months ago, disposed of his teams and replaced them with a 40-horsepower truck. He averages about 30 miles each day, and claims that the truck has taken the place of six horses and two wagons, one man handling the deliveries where formerly two were required. As an example of the daily routine, with a boy as "hopper," that is, to jump off and on the truck and put the milk on the porches, the car covered 30.5 miles in two hours and fifty-five minutes, during which time seventy-five gallons of milk were delivered, all of which was put up in quart and pint bottles.

The owner has figured the cost of delivering with a motor truck, as compared with the delivery by horses and wagons, and the following is his statement of the comparative costs, together with the saving which the motor truck has made for him:

First truck cost	$1,200.00
Gas for 15 months	250.00
Oil	45.00
Tires	175.00
Repairs	75.00
Making a total of	$1,745.00
Credit allowed on new car	500.00
Total expense for 15 months	$1,245.00
As compared with team delivery:
Three teams, 15 months at $15 per month	$675.00
Extra man, 15 months at $50 per month	750.00
Original cost of horses	450.00
Cost of two wagons and harness	470.00
Making a total of	$2,345.00
Leaving a balance in favor of the truck	$1,100.00

In commenting on this report in a letter to Kimball's Dairy Farmer, the owner states:

"You will note that I am figuring the cost of team very low. With the truck we can place our milk on the market in less than one-half the time required when using teams, which has almost entirely eliminated complaints. As living as we do, eight miles from the heart of the business district, we are enabled to place our milk in the homes of our customers within 3 to 15 hours from the time it is milked, thus putting us in a position to secure the highest price for our product."

FRUIT GROWER'S TRUCK PAID FOR ITSELF IN FOUR MONTHS

Fruit growers over the country are beginning to realize the assistance that trucks offer to successful handling and marketing of their products, and while a comparatively small number of Georgia fruit growers have fallen in line with the progressive march of the times and have begun to use motor trucks in moving their fruit, there are many thousands of others who could find a profitable use for them.

In many instances a systematic analysis of local conditions and an intelligent use of the truck as a delivery medium will bring added profits from an orchard. Such was the experience of Mr. D. Oliver, owner of the Lake View Fruit Farm, at Orchard Lake, Mich. His best market is Detroit, but that city is thirty miles distant from the orchard, and one trip with a team and load of forty or fifty bushels of apples was a long day's work. There are one or two markets much nearer the farm, but to deliver his fruit there or sell the orchard outright to commission merchants meant a much smaller margin of profit on the crop.

Last fall, with 6,000 bushels of apples to dispose of and the local market just out of reach, he figured that the only way to boost his profits was to invest a little money, so he bought a motor truck and moved the entire crop to Detroit, where he received from 25 cents to 40 cents more per bushel than if he had sold them at the farm. The truck, which is a one and a quarter ton, made two round trips per day, 60 bushels to the load. Figuring at 25 cents, which was the lowest amount of additional profit received per bushel, his truck has made him a net profit of $1,500 and paid for itself in the four months it has been in service. He has been to no expense whatever for repairs on his truck, and it has never failed to make the sixty-mile trips, even in the snow, which has been the heaviest in that section of Michigan in years.

Similar experiences are frequently heard of from all fruit-growing sections of the country, and it begins to seem that the motor truck is taking a most important part in the successful handling of crops. As in the instance of Mr. Oliver, his truck has enabled him not only to get his apples to the right market, but to get them there when the market was best.

TO THE GEORGIA PEACH AND APPLE GROWERS:
This is merely a suggestion that those of you who live within a radius of thirty or forty miles of Atlanta, Macon, Augusta, Columbus, or any one of the other thousand and one cities or towns of Georgia, might be able to make a motor truck pay you in the same proportion that it paid Mr. Oliver. If you are a tract gardener, you could use the truck to the same good advantage, and in fact, the truck is almost a necessity for you. If you can use a truck to advantage, it will pay you to buy one.

If you can do your work better, more quickly, and at less expense by the use of a motor truck, then buy one. It will pay you to do so. Atlanta has dealers for all the principal trucks, and you can get your truck in any size and with any horse power needed. By all means, if you need a truck, buy it. It will pay you and will pay you big.

YOUNG HELMSMAN MAKES SWIFT ASCENT TO FAME

DETROIT, Aug. 21.—Gene Stratton Porter's "Chester" had some nerve, but he wasn't one, two, three with Johnny Milot, whom they call "Freckles" up around Algonac.

Johnny went to Manassas bay, Long Island, with the Detroit syndicate's speedboat, Miss Detroit, as a mere helper—just to polish her up and groom her. He stood on the bank as she was moved to, coastless and halless Saturday afternoon, just eight minutes before the race started. Through some hitch, there was nobody ready to drive the boat. "What's the matter with Johnny driving her?" one of the men working on the boat suggested. Johnny did it. And he won the event in a "common contest," as the track followers phrase it.

As he said afterward, he had never driven a motor boat of any description before, and it is supposed to take months, if not years, of experience to guide a jumping, lurching craft fairly leaping over the water.

"Never even hold an automobile wheel," he was asked. "Nope," he replied. Then he added, after some thought: "I've driven a Ford."

DIDN'T HAVE THE SCENERY.
They strapped a life preserver around Johnny before he started and pulled a Jersey over his ears, but he didn't have any goggles or gloves to grip the wheel with and keep his hands from burning or knee pads to keep his knees from getting black and blue from bumping against the wheel. All the experienced drivers had these things. The just sent Miss Detroit up the course a half mile and had been back for a while when Johnny came back. He was out of breath, and they were off. He was over the starting line first, but he didn't know it. He just followed the baby Reine V., which Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, her owner, had sent out in the lead.

Twice around the five-mile course Johnny followed her. Then he knew the way and he sent Miss Detroit to the front. She was never headed after that. Four times more around the course she fairly flew, leading ahead by bounds. All the spectators on a fleet of 250 anchored yachts heard was a buzz like that of an airplane close overhead; then there were fireworks and a roar, and Johnny was gone again. The finishing gun flashed Miss Detroit a winner, but Johnny kept on. The more around the course she tore, while he hustled the wheel. Spectators on every yacht were waiting for him to stop. Finally it dawned upon him he had better do so.

"What's the matter?" he shouted as Miss Detroit slowed down, and the popping of her engine lessened enough for his voice to be heard.

"Nothing, only you've won!" a patrol judge shouted.

TOLD HIM HE'D WON.

"I didn't know the race was over," Johnny said afterward. "Nobody told me when it would be. I guess they didn't have time to."

"Say," he said through an air splattered face so grimy one could hardly distinguish his freckles, "Jack, here, deserves the credit if there is any. She referring to the motor in the boat never missed once."

"How did you dare cut the corners of the course so close?" he was asked. "Jack did that," he replied. He slowed her down and I just sent her around. I've all there was to it."

The general opinion is that the White Sox have blown and that they are not going to be in at the finish. There is still hope, for they are not so far down the list but that they can overtake the leaders if they get the breaks.

IMPROVED METHODS OF OBSTINATE KIDNEY DISEASES

READ WHAT SOME OF MY CURED AND SATISFIED PATIENTS SAY

Science is on the wing. Treatments used one year ago are back numbers now. To be a TOP NOTCH Specialist requires not only skill and energy, but capital. The public is not satisfied with the doctor who sticks in the OLD RIG. I am prepared to give my patients the benefit of all the great discoveries as soon as they are perfected. Before my business they are a dead letter. MY STRAIGHTFORWARD announcements or because I have cured some of their friends.

Every testimonial is on file in my office. I have or publish testimonials without consent of patient. EXTRACTS FROM A FEW OF MANY SWORN TESTIMONIALS.

T. L. Davidson, 911 Chest Street, Atlanta, Ga., says: "About five years ago Dr. Hughes cured me a chronic case of Kidney and Bladder Trouble after many doctors had failed. He treated the best of me."

R. W. Statham, 1134 Chandler Building, Atlanta, Ga., says: "My husband cured me of a case of Eosinosis that had resisted the best efforts of other doctors."

T. F. Small, Lafayette, Ala., says: "Dr. Hughes cured me of a chronic case of Constipation and Piles without cutting, pain or inconvenience. I paid Dr. Hughes the best interest I ever made in my life."

I have used Salvarsan and Bacterins to hundreds of cases. Each case I treat now gets the advantage of this vast experience. In my hands these remedies cure, in ineffectiveness, Rheumatism, Acne, Scall, Abscesses, Dropsy, Jaundice, Bowel and Liver Trouble, Gall Stones, Kidney and Bladder Affections, Blood Disorders, Piles, Varicose Veins, Weakness, Nervous Quality, Catarrhs, Discharges and many other diseases of men and women are cured. Whatever your ailment, call.

I will examine you; if necessary make a chemical and microscopic analysis of secretions to determine pathological and bacteriological conditions. Your case may be one that has heretofore been considered practically incurable, but I will find the new method of treatment and administer it.

CALL TO-DAY—DON'T DELAY. A friendly talk and thorough examination will cost you nothing, and may be the means of saving money as well as years of suffering. Everything confidential. Large number of cases treated. Treating obstinate conditions is due to the fact that I personally examine every patient.

I am not connected with any other Doctor Hughes traveling around through Georgia representing himself to be the original Atlanta specialist. An announcement of mine where he signs, is not mine.

WHITE CO. INCREASES SLICED BACON CAPACITY

Cornfield Sliced Bacon Trade
Attains Large Proportions
in One Year

One of the features of the business of the White Provision company that has in a very short time increased from a small beginning to very large proportions is its sliced bacon trade. The company ever since its organization has cured and put upon the market its famous Cornfield brand of breakfast bacon, but it was only one year ago that they began to market sliced Cornfield bacon. The bacon is sliced by an electrically-run machine and is carefully and suitably packed in one-pound cartons. These cartons are packed again in six and twelve-pound cases. "It may be stated that the merits of Cornfield sliced breakfast bacon," said W. H. White, Jr., of this company, "are first its perfect curing and flavor, and next its even and uniform slices and its attractive packing and appearance. Our sliced bacon department has grown so within this one year that we have been compelled to increase largely our capacity to keep up with the demands of our trade."

Mr. White also mentioned another merit of the Cornfield bacon which has its greatest result in the appearance of the consumer. It was noticed that all the men about the plant were happy smiles upon the occasion of the visit of the Firing Line representative. "This satisfied and joyous look," said Mr. White, "is entirely derived from the fact that all these men have breakfasted off of Cornfield bacon. It seems to be the absolutely right way for a business man to start off the day, that is, with a proper allowance of Cornfield bacon. It seems to produce a large degree of cheerfulness of disposition and optimism of outlook."

SILVEY CO. CELEBRATES "OPENING BILL WEEK"

Firm Sold Four Opening Bills
Last Week--Notions and Dry Goods Race

Last week might be called "Opening Bill Week" for John Silvey & Co. This firm sold four opening bills during that period. H. T. Burton sold one and P. H. Curry sold three. All were sold to visiting merchants. "In addition to the opening bills, we had a very brisk home trade throughout the week," said R. K. Rambo, of that firm. "The race is still on between our dry goods department and the notions department to see which will win. I believe the dry goods department is still ahead."

Bookout, of Jewell, will open an up-to-date 5 and 10-cent store at Greenville, Ga. Greenville is the old home of Mr. Bookout, and the old adage, "Where our treasure lies, there where our heart is also," is familiar to all. He wanted to do something for his home town and decided there was nothing better he could do than give them an up-to-date 5 and 10-cent store. Mr. Bookout has arranged to place a competent man in charge of his new enterprise, and will continue to run his jewelry business at 53 West Mitchell street.

WE Have Often Been Asked the Question
"Can't you buy Harness cheaper than you can make them?"
Our answer echoes yes invariably. But "we can make them better" than we can buy them. Therefore buyers of Crane's Custom Harness are the beneficiaries under our policy.

Greater values and better service are just as eagerly sought by shrewd purchasers as the saving in price. The one equals the other with them.

A fair price for a good article is more to be appreciated than merely a low price for cheap stuff.

The better goods you buy the less time you lose in service.

The more time you gain in the use of good quality Vehicles and Harness, the more money you make and the better your results will be.

CARHART GIRLS GIVE UNIQUE ENTERTAINMENT

Celebrate First Making of All-American Overall With Flag Decorations

The girl employees of Hamilton Carhart, manufacturer of overalls, gave an enjoyable dance and watermelon cutting on last Friday night. The spacious second floor was converted into a dance hall and attractively decorated with American flags and Japanese lanterns. The flag idea was also carried out in the appointments of the dining room.

It was a delightful occasion from every standpoint. The entertainment was incidentally a celebration of the beginning of the manufacture by the company of an "all-American" overall, and hence the prominence given to the flag in the decorations. Since the war, the blue dye with which overalls have heretofore been colored have become exhausted and the firm has adopted Van Dyke brown, all the materials for which come from South America.

In showing their loyalty to the firm and their patriotism, the girls, unknown to the management, made the dance hall and dining room a bower of patriotic decorations.

Use of Auto Brings Him Back From Trip Much Sooner

G. G. Jefferson, of Dougherty-Little-Redwine company, otherwise known as "Uncle Jeff," has been away on a fishing trip in north Georgia. Since "Uncle Jeff" purchased an automobile in which to make his trips, he has been having a great deal of leisure because of the fact that his new mode of conveyance permits him to make his tours in much shorter time than heretofore. Recently he found himself up with his schedule of visits and even ahead, so he took a week off and devoted it to an outing among the streams of north Georgia.

E. G. THOMAS MADE TWO SUCCESSFUL TRIPS

E. G. Thomas, head of the Rice & Hutchins Atlanta company, spent the first part of last week visiting Garner, the company's representative at Birmingham, Ala. The two were looking for new special orders and they were successful in the work.

"Everything is in fine shape in the Birmingham district," said Mr. Thomas, "and an active fall business is at present indicated. During the latter part of the week I visited Gainesville, Ga., working up some special trade there with Fred Smith of our company. We had very successful business and after I left Fred sent in some nice orders from the Gainesville territory."

SOLID CAR SERV-US OATS AT KELLEY BROS. SOON

A solid carload of Serv-US oatmeal and grits has been ordered by Kelley Brothers company for the immediate demands of their trade. The car is expected to be shipped out from the factory by August 25 and will arrive in Atlanta as soon thereafter as possible. The company is making all effort to get the car here to supply the urgent demands of its consumers in this territory of these items of the popular Serv-US line.

GRAMLING CO. MAKES BIG TENNIS SHOE SHIPMENTS

The Gramling-Spaulding company reports that they are now sending out large shipments of tennis shoes. These shoes were sold heretofore, but so great has been the demand for them that factories have just been able to catch up with their shipments. The Gramling-Spaulding company each year does a tremendous business in this line of goods.

FULTON COUNCIL'S "SPIEL" MEETING WAS SUCCESS

Large Crowd Present at Entertainment in Honor of New Members

The entertainment of Fulton council 565 on Saturday night in honor of its new members was a distinct success. One of the largest United Commercial Travelers crowds ever assembled in Atlanta gathered in the council chamber in the Kiser building to witness the festivities.

An excellent program was rendered, consisting of interesting speeches, recitations and music. The officers of the council made a hit with their sample "spiel" talks. They showed what they say about their goods to prospective customers when they are on the road through the week and also showed how they sell it.

The entertainment committee made itself solid with the membership with the delightful refreshments that were provided for the occasion. Georgia watermelons were there in abundance, but were not there for long. Many visiting United Commercial Travelers were present, including the members of Atlanta council, their wives and friends.

A fuller account of the proceedings will appear in next Sunday's Firing Line.

SOUTH TO ENJOY BIG CHRISTMAS TRADE

Dobbs & Wey travelers are all at headquarters getting ready their samples of holiday goods preparatory to going on the road. "We expect a big holiday trade this year," said W. L. Percy, of this firm. "We have one of the best lines of this kind we have ever carried and notwithstanding the war, we have had no trouble in getting in holiday goods from Germany and Austria. There was no Christmas trade last year to amount to anything and this year we feel sure that it will be greater than ever for the reason that it is now two years since the people have indulged in a proper supply of Christmas goods."

If You Are a Merchant Out for Better Business--

You will be interested--doubtless already are--in the general proposition that it pays to have intelligent clerks.

The bigger the merchant, the more definite attention he pays to brains. He wants to know that his employees have brains.

Also he wants to develop what brains they have to start with. All the big fellows are working on the idea of getting the most they possibly can out of the brains they pay for.

Take Wanamaker.

Wanamaker has a pretty sizable outfit. A very important feature of his sell-more-goods plan is the John Wanamaker Commercial Institute.

"The institute is for the young employees of the store. Many of the youngest employees look at some little problem, gigantic to them, with the 'What would Mr. Wanamaker do?' spirit."

"There is a buyer at Wanamaker's today who started as a cash girl in the department she now heads. She is a product of Wanamaker training."

"For the older employees there are talks given by the buyers of the respective departments. These talks are given especially before some special sale is to be held. The advertisements announcing the special values are gone over and selling points are brought out so even the dullest salesperson will grasp them."

"The faculty of the institute includes a principal and eight vocational instructors. In addition there are teachers who devote their time to musical instruction. Commencement exercises were held last June and medals for meritorious service in school and store were awarded the worthy ones."

Now, this is not a John Wanamaker boost. John isn't the only merchant who knows which side his bread is buttered on.

It is just a peg to hang something on that we want to say about the plan of getting our salesmen and our store employees to SELL MORE GOODS.

Educate them to know the goods. Teach them what's what.

If you Georgia Merchants would put your clerks wise to the patriotism they can practice in pushing GEORGIA-MADE GOODS, you would be helping yourselves far more than you imagine.

It pays to get the clerk into the spirit of the game.

It pays to have him understand that you buy HOM-MANUFACTURED GOODS because they cost you less freight.

That gives him a good selling-point.

It pays you to have him understand that you buy HOM-MANUFACTURED GOODS because you are in reach of the factory and can replenish in short order.

That's another selling-point.

It pays to have him understand that it is sound policy for the state and the South to build up their OWN industries.

The industrial success of the community measures YOUR success to a great extent.

That's a fine line of talk to give the customer. It's all wool, yard-wide, and will stand washing.

Train your clerks, neighbors. And naturally the way to start on this kind of training is to BUY THE GOODS THAT ARE MADE HERE AT HOME.

We are the firms that you are looking for.

Atlanta Takes To Trouserettes

New Dancing Costume
Is Praised by Atlanta
Women as "Emancipation" in Feminine Dress.

TROUSERETTES as a part of the dancing costume were introduced to the East Lake Country club less than two weeks ago by Mrs. Julian Chase, of Inman Park. In the attractive dress in which she is shown here, she attended the mid-week dance at the club a week from last Thursday.

"In New York," said Mrs. Chase, "trouserettes are worn by everyone in dancing, and transparent dresses are worn by no one at all. The new costume allows greater freedom of movement, and possesses more grace and more modesty."

In this opinion she has the support of half a dozen Atlanta women who were interviewed last week. "I think," said one, "that the new dress is an 'emancipation' in women's styles. Before this we have worn uncomfortable fashions because someone or other thought they were modest. Now, in this new dancing costume, we have something that allows us to walk, instead of mincing along. At the same time the new style is neither translucent nor awkward."

"I think trouserettes as a part of the dancing costume are preferable to the filmy dress which is a means of 'exhibition,' instead of a form of clothing."

Another, who is a well known club woman, said:

"I think dancing costumes went to an extreme in Atlanta this season and that some change is needed. The new costume seems to me sensible and becoming and much to be preferred to the rousamer style that makes you afraid to stand in a strong light. This is simply a return to the style of our grandmothers, and it is one I hope to see become popular."

Recent visitors to New York speak of the popularity of the new dancing dress. Miss Lucile Goodrich, a sister of Mrs. Julian Chase, in talking not long ago of dancing and of fashions said:

"Every one dances now with his shoulders instead of his feet. New York doesn't do the one-step any more. The old-fashioned waltz has replaced the hesitation. Every one does the fox trot and the pigeon walk. And they don't wear the 'see-through-'em dresses' either. No—trouserettes."

A Whitehall street merchant said this: "Trouserettes as a part of the dancing costume are not on our sales lists. But we expect the new costume to be in demand here by fall. Of course this fashion of dress isn't absolutely new to Atlanta. But as a style for every one, instead of just a few, it is entirely new."

Predictions are made that by fall the fashion of our grandmothers will be the prevailing style. Perhaps along with the trouserettes that peep below the dress, will go lace mittens and a poke bonnet.

MRS. JULIAN CHASE, of Inman Park, in the becoming costume she wore a week from last Thursday to the midweek dance at the East Lake Country club. Will trouserettes become a fashion in Atlanta this fall?

What Can Ever Catch You in Sleep?

Atlanta Doctor Advances New Theory That Sleep
Lost Can Never Be Regained. Sleeplessness, He Thinks, Induces a Condition
Like Old Age.

BECAUSE tissues are torn down during loss of sleep that never are rebuilt fully though you oversleep the next night.

This is the theory of an Atlanta doctor. He is a member of the visiting staff at Grady hospital, and is one of the best known physicians in Atlanta.

His theory is absolutely new. The modern tendency, indeed, is to urge less sleep. A recent writer said:

Does not the growing tendency to insomnia point to a transition period from the old-time periods of mental torpor to the time when man shall be able to use his cerebral engine every hour of his brief life?

Look at Edison. He sleeps five hours a night and says it is enough. In opposition to all this comes the Atlanta doctor who says:

Seven to eight hours sleep nightly is necessary for the average person. Every hour of sleep lost is lost for good. It can never fully be made up. A part of your life has been wasted and can never be regained.

For ethical reasons he asks that his name be withheld. But if you have lived in Atlanta any length of time you know him. He is one of the foremost physicians here.

Recently The Journal's Sunday magazine mentioned his theory, but went into it at no length. Here he will be quoted more fully. The gist of his opinion is that loss of sleep affects one like old age.

"People grow old," he said, "because their arteries harden. This is largely because the body grows less able to throw off poisons. Sleep is a means of disintegrating the body of poisons. It is one way the body has of ridding itself of waste products before they become injurious. When you lose sleep you encourage conditions that bring about old age. If you oversleep the next night you don't do away with the bad effect.

If everyone realized the great change in the body during sleep, he would realize the great and lasting effect of loss of sleep.

"We don't simply sleep because we are tired, and wake up because we are rested.

"Sleep is a defense against the conditions that cause old age. We sleep not only to renew the body, but also to prevent further exhaustion.

"What I wish to bring out is that when we fail to sleep enough we don't simply fail to build up the body, we fail to prevent the injurious breaking down of tissue.

"The whole truth is that loss of sleep means a wear and a tear for which we never make up.

"We hear of Edison sleeping only four hours, we know that John Hunter, the great physician, and Napoleon did not sleep much, and that Humboldt got along very well on only three hours a night. Herbert Spencer and many others thought that a minimum of sleep suited them.

"But I almost think if they had slept longer they would have lived longer and would have been greater men.

"You hear every now and then of an old citizen who has lived a hundred years and drunk corn whiskey every day. But doesn't it occur to you that he would have lived maybe 120 years if he had left the liquor alone?

"One of the great reasons for nervous breakdowns today is loss of sleep. There is so much to tempt people from sleepless. When you sleep eight hours you think you are missing a lot. You are—and among them is premature old age.

"Sleep regularly, sleep sufficiently, sleep in the open air. It is the one great rule of happiness and long life.

"Don't think you can follow the example of the Edisons and the Napoleons who sleep four hours and are ready the next morning for a hard day's work. Such men are abnormal and probably died.

"If you are physically an average person, every hour sleep you lose is actually lost. As one writer has put it:

"Sleep is a protective function, an instinct which is intended to prevent us from arriving at a condition of exhaustion. We sleep, not because we are poisoned or exhausted, but so that we shall neither be poisoned nor exhausted."

"When you lose sleep you encourage a condition of poisoning of the system and a condition of exhaustion. The poisoning and this exhaustion induce the conditions that bring about old age. They cause a breaking down of the body that sleep the next night won't remedy."

"Sleep loss is like something burned up. It's gone, it can't be brought back. When a building is destroyed by fire so much property is wiped out. You can build another building, but you can't bring back the one that is gone.

"Sleep lost is sleep lost. There is no such thing as catching up."

A glance at magazine articles and books at the Carnegie library on sleep will show how different is this belief from the modern theory.

H. Addington Bruce says:

Personally I have no doubt that most of us sleep longer than is really necessary. It has been experimentally shown that, even following protracted vigils, a surprisingly small amount of sleep is needed to effect complete recuperation. In one particularly interesting set of experiments, made some years ago by Prof. Patrick and Doctor Gilbert in the psychological laboratory of the University of Iowa, three members of the teaching staff were kept continuously awake for about 90 hours. Being then allowed to go to bed they found it necessary to make up from 16 to 35 per cent of the time lost from sleep. Students of sleep are agreed, in fact, that it is the quality of sleep rather than the quantity, and that certain dangers, physical and mental, attend the development of an undue sleep habit. A number of other writers express a somewhat similar belief. None, however, agree entirely on any one thing. A thousand explanations have been offered of what sleep really is. Various experiments have been tried to prove when we sleep soundest, and there seem to show that we rest most completely during the first hour after going to sleep. During the remaining time our rest becomes more and more broken and less refreshing.

But the soundest theory seems the newest one, advanced here: Sleep is a means of keeping the body from growing old. Sleep lost induces aging conditions of the body that can't be relieved by longer rest the next night. Sleep lost is sleep lost for all time.

SOUTH'S BRAVEST WOMAN WAS ELIZABETH TEMMS, OF CALHOUN

THE SOUTH'S bravest woman in the Civil war was Mrs. Elizabeth Temms, of Calhoun, Ga. The Nashville (Tenn.) Banner, recently offered prizes for true stories of heroism by southern women. The life of Elizabeth Temms, told by Miss Louise Hancock, of Nashville, won first prize, as an account of the south's most heroic woman.

All the south," wrote Miss Hancock, "has thrilled at tales of the southern soldier, who though cruelly outnumbered, outarmed, outcited and outfought, dauntlessly fought four years. The lives of these brave men have gone down in history."

"Such has not been the lot of the southern women. History gives no mention of the mothers who gave their sons, the wives who gave their husbands and the women who gave their lives."

"There was one woman especially, Elizabeth Temms, the wife of a Georgia soldier, whose heroism is a fit theme for song and story. Right through the enemy's camp she continually and fearlessly sneaked clothes and food to the suffering boys in gray. Often she and her children are lost that the hungry soldiers might be fed.

"It happened that her home lay directly in the line of Sherman's march to the sea. The Yankees had been routed in a skirmish near the Temms plantation on a certain day and the Confederates were pursuing them. The Yankees hid in a dry creek just behind the house.

"The high fence about twenty feet in front of the creek, and the Confederates were compelled to climb this fence to continue the pursuit. While in the disorder necessary for climbing the Yankees would open fire on their unsuspecting foe. A panic would ensue. The boys in gray would be butchered.

"Elizabeth Temms, from her upstairs window, saw this clearly. She must save her people, at what price she cared not. Better the death of one than the death of many. Without a moment's hesitation, Elizabeth Temms boldly rushed out and warned her people of their danger.

"And so the soldiers were saved. But for her heroism she must pay the penalty. The Yankees commanded her to take the oath of allegiance. Elizabeth Temms, powerless in the enemy's hands, dared refuse. She defied them, swearing love and eternal devotion to the south, though her home was in ruins and she meant separation from her little children.

"She was sent to Louisville and placed in the old residence at Twelfth and Broadway, used during the war between the states as a woman's prison. Her spirit was unbreakable. Hunger, suffering and privation could not bend her. She was thrown into an old ice house in the yard and there compelled to remain all night on the moulding, wet straw. When taken out next morning she had developed pneumonia, and was soon near death. Unconquered, she died, feeling her tragic fate no sacrifice, but a supreme privilege. Her dying request was, 'Bury me with my people.'

"Elizabeth Temms gave up for the south her home, her husband, her children, her life. The south gave to her a grave in Cave Hill cemetery, beside the Confederate soldiers, and a simple marriage slab with her name and date. No written word of appreciation records for posterity the memory of this woman. But in the name of justice, should not the memory of Elizabeth Temms be cherished among our martyred dead?"

The name of Mrs. Temms is also spelled Timms and Temms.

The author of the prize story recently visited the home of Mrs. Temms at Cave Hill cemetery in Louisville, and found not only a woman's name among the Confederates. On her tomb was inscribed her name, home, date of her death, and 'Bury me with my people.'

And Now Atlanta Women Would Be Years

NOT all at once of course. But they wish to live a hundred years.

Arnold Broyles last winter formed a men's century club, and since then, the three members—himself, Jack Stewart, and John McCullough—have fought Father Time by exercise, diet, and eight hours' sleep a night.

Now, the 100-year ambition has extended to the women of the city.

One club, devoted to culture, both mental and physical, received a month ago from California the rules and directions of a famous club there which has reduced to a few simple precepts the way to live 100 years.

These rules, which are typewritten and cover a number of legal-sized pages, have been passed from one cultural association to another. Among the study clubs of Atlanta it is common knowledge now what the sister association in California is doing to prolong life.

What is more, the heart-to-live-100-years' rules are being followed.

No breakfast is being eaten, everyone rises early, everyone is happy. The chief rules are: Be industrious and be happy.

The rules of the California club are summed up in the injunction not to eat meat and not to drink tea and coffee. Meat is held to be a means simply of introducing poisons into the system.

Other foods as nutritious, without the poisoning effect, can be found.

The first directions are to rise early, to eat no breakfast, and to do the largest part of the day's work in the morning.

The morning is the positive half of the day. It is the half, when you are freshest, strongest, and can do most.

"The experience of the association in California is that the brain is clearest without the morning meal—that we can do most and feel best if we eat nothing until noon."

"The rest of the diet directions of the club are summed up in the injunction not to eat meat and not to drink tea and coffee. Meat is held to be a means simply of introducing poisons into the system.

Other foods as nutritious, without the poisoning effect, can be found.

The purpose of the club is to live lives that are happy and useful. It is engaged in the encouragement of several important institutions such as the training school for girls. But it is also engaged in a practical study of life. To further this phase of its

FOUND: The Lost White Elephant of Alabama Street

By Angus Perkerson

YOU remember the white elephant that stood so many years on Alabama street just around from Pryor.

It was found last week in the back of a negro house off Luckie.

Hundreds of people knew the elephant. They stopped beside it daily and leaped against it, and children wanted to be lifted up and set aside the broad marble back in an order to a horse quarry.

The owner of the White Elephant saloon had carved. Soon after he set up his drinking shop on Alabama, someone remarked:

"Well, you've got a white elephant on your hands."

"That furnished him an idea. He'd give his saloon a hoodoo name, and make it a money-payer. Wouldn't a No. 23 barber shop, or a '33' quick lunch stand attract you?"

"White elephant" was a phrase that caught the fancy. First the saloon-keeper hung out a sign with that name; next, he sent in an order to a horse quarry.

"Ship at earliest practicable date, one white marble elephant, four feet high, price doesn't matter."

The saloon boss talked it over with his city marshal, the latter said it was just exactly all right for the elephantine figure in marble to rest on the sidewalk.

"I'll hurry up that elephant," was the order wired three weeks later.

Just an even month passed when the saloon boss had a "phone message from the express company."

"You got a elephant down here, but the darn thing's so heavy we can't move it."

It took about 48 hours to shift the stone creature from the old Union depot a block down to Alabama. Just in front of where the Fulton market is now, the white elephant found a footing on the sidewalk.

There, for years and years it stood. Didn't you ever pass by and stop to rub your hands over the smooth marble back? Don't you remember just exactly how it stood and looked, and how it was absolutely a part of the street?

"To me," said an old-timer last week, "Alabama street has never been the same since. It lacks something."

It has lacked that "something" since the day prohibition went into effect.

The man who owned the White Elephant saloon was never one to talk much, but what he said had a meaning. It was the morning the bill came and he rubbed one hand over the stone back of the elephant. He stood there a little, half regretfully, as though lingering over a "good-bye."

"Well," he said, "if this town can't let me keep up my old business, then it can't have you. You're mine. When I close up shop I'll put you where nobody'll see you any more."

He closed that day. All that night a squad of men were busy working on Alabama just around from Pryor. There was the sound of heavy blocks, of men heaving away at a great weight, then the rumble of wheels.

The next day there was something queerly lacking about Alabama. It seemed quiet. What was it? Everyone asked himself that question, and, finally, saw the reason. The white elephant was gone. Where it had stood was an empty place. The hoodoo sign that made a saloon successful had vanished.

The saloon man never said much. Now he answered all questions just with a smile; and one sentence: "You'll see it no more."

Sure enough, people who knew the stone figure never laid eyes on it again. It was gone. Where?

All these years it has been in the backyard of a negro house in the rear of 131 Luckie. By a coincidence it was found last week.

Just back of No. 131 lives an old negro with a watch-dog rooster. This plain barnyard chicken fights anything, man or beast, that approaches the negro but. No dog's needed with such a chicken around.

The rooster was being sought last week when the white elephant was found. Extending back from a vacant lot off Luckie is a big patch of grass. Through this weedy growth a path, like footways through a tiny jungle. They led to a group of houses no one could see from the street. There, in the hollow of a square cluster dwellings, some of which are raised high on a ground because of the sloping earth on which they stand.

There are such a number of paths to choose from, you can never know where you will bring up. We chose blindly and pushed on into the labyrinth. The weeds and brush that approaches the negro but, and nothing of house or yard could be seen ahead.

The weedy patch grew thicker, we began to go uphill, we stepped out tree of

At the top, long-lost white elephant.

At the bottom rooster that acts as a watch dog.

COTTON WILL WIN THE WAR

ALBUQUERQUE, Ga. — "Germany is whipped, and as soon as she realizes this fact she is going to quit." This is the opinion of Julian P. Clark, of this city, who has just returned from a two months' business trip to England, France and Italy.

Mr. Clark is the American representative of Arturo Bonaschi, cotton importers, Milan, Italy. Sailing from the United States, he went to Liverpool, and after a short while in England, went to France and Italy. He says the last-named country is serene and that business activity there gives comparative little evidence of the conflict raging near Italian borders.

Speaking of the war situation as it relates to cotton, Mr. Clark said: "The British blockade prevents Germany from getting cotton, and she can't keep up the war without it. The great quantity of smokeless powder, which Germany has been using is responsible for the consumption of cotton at a tremendous rate, for cotton is essential to the manufacture of this explosive."

"Germany has put up a plucky fight, but she won't be able to hold out much longer. She is pulling the clothes off the backs of her women and children in her desperate search for the staple to be used in the manufacture of explosives. The Kaiser has no chance whatever, and every one in Europe seems to know it, aside from the Teutons."

MISS HELEN STEWART, of Atlanta, now in California with Margaret Anglin's Greek players. Miss Stewart was the foremost exponent in Atlanta of rhythmic dancing and of the ideals of physical culture, studied now by several clubs here. The purpose of this study is to increase efficiency and to prolong life to a hundred years or more.

"You never feel better than after accomplishing some worthy task. You never feel worse than after a day of time."

"Then, be happy. The habit of happiness can be acquired. It is as easy to be happy as it is to be glum."

"Get fresh air, be interested in the worthy things of life, be industrious, keep busy, feel an interest in beautiful things, in books, in music, in dancing, be of a constructive work, avoid idleness, and you have achieved one of the great successes of life."

"In fact, it is believed by the California association that if you do all these things a life of a hundred-year span is quite possible."

The club of which Mrs. Cummings is president, and through which the precepts for efficiency and a long life were introduced into Atlanta, is modeled in part after the California club. Both are devoted to physical and mental culture. Such culture, in fact, is studied here now by many clubs.

PERFECT HEALTH AND BEAUTY

BY MRS. HENRY SYMES

IMPROVING A NEGLECTED COMPLEXION

Apply Ice to Reduce Large Pores

There are times when one becomes very careless regarding one's complexion. It may be that for a while one is a very enthusiastic follower of certain rules to improve the complexion, but gradually the enthusiasm dies down and all efforts are ceased. Then it is necessary to work doubly hard to repair the damages wrought by negligence. Many things can be done to improve the neglected complexion, but there are just as many things which should be learned and practiced so that they become habits, which keep the complexion in perfect condition.

As old but nevertheless true and weighty saying is that beauty comes from within. It is, therefore, necessary that this be borne in mind in one's search for a "peachy" skin. One of the most successful helps for a number of physical disturbances which have their effect upon the complexion is hot water. A cup of hot water taken before breakfast or with breakfast, in place of coffee, will do a great amount of good. The water taken one hour before the morning meal will prove an effective laxative. It will also relieve any form of dyspepsia. In fact, for the latter trouble one-half pint of water, just as hot as it can be sipped with a spoon, should be taken three times a day, one hour before each meal. The water can be made more palatable by the addition of a little salt or lemon juice. Not only is hot water to be taken, but cold water, too, is advised. All water for drinking purposes should be filtered or boiled for thirty minutes. After it is boiled and allowed to cool, it should be poured into large bottles, and these, after being tightly corked, should be placed in the refrigerator next to the ice. When serving the water, do not make the mistake of adding ice to it. Ice water should never be taken. It retards and interferes with digestion.

Three pints of water should be taken daily. The water improves the quality of the blood. Its presence in the blood is really an essential to carry foods to the tissues and to convey the waste matter away from the tissues. By thus getting rid of the impurities of the body the complexion is bound to be benefited.

The external application of water is quite essential in the work of improving and keeping the condition of the skin up to the mark. A person having robust health should take two baths a day, a hot one at night and a cold plunge in the morning. The body has thousands and thousands of little pores which throw off waste matter. If this refuse is not washed from the body it is certain to irritate the skin. It is very important that the wash-cloth and all other toilet articles be clean and sweet, else all further attempts to beautify the skin will be of no avail.

Steam the Face Occasionally

Many girls have the habit of eating candy every day. It may be only ten cents' worth at a time, but this amount is sufficient to produce unsightly blotches on the skin after the stomach has been given more than it can possibly digest. A little candy now and again is very good for the system, but an overindulgence is harmful. To satisfy a craving for sweets substitute fruit for the candy. An apple a day will have a beneficial effect. Apples are said to possess a food as well as a medicinal value. They provide a source of energy which is a necessary quality of every wide-awake girl. As the most aromatic part of the apple lies nearest the skin, only a thin paring should be removed. Baked apples, as well as other cooked fruits, are good for the general system. It takes strength of mind to steer from the candy store to the fruit stand, but a little assertion of the will power will satisfy vanity, so it is worth the effort.

While a good complexion comes from within, it is necessary to apply external treatment very frequently. For instance, a skin which has been neglected will often have dust and dirt ground so firmly into the pores that it is impossible to remove it with a washcloth. In this case, a steam bath is necessary to relax the skin so that the pores will open. The face can be given a steam bath by pouring very hot water into a basin, holding the face over the basin and using a towel to prevent the steam from scattering. See illustration. After the face has been sufficiently steamed, scrub it with a good flesh brush to release the dirt. Of course, an agreeable soap must also be used with the brush. Rinse the face with warm water and gradually reduce the temperature of the water until it is very cold. The cold water has a stimulating action on the blood vessels and improves the circulation in the skin. Persons who are afflicted with enlarged pores will do well to massage the skin with ice after giving the face the above treatment. The ice will not only reduce large pores, but it will improve the tone of the elastic fibers in the skin and will, in a measure, delay the appearance of wrinkles or your dentition.

If there is any tendency to dryness of the skin a good cold cream should be used. The cream must be of a good quality and perfectly fresh. Rancid cream is very irritating to the skin.

Very frequently persons who have a clear complexion find it has turned sallow. This, in most cases, is due to a disturbance of the liver. The best thing to do under such circumstances is to have the family physician prescribe a medicine which will suit the individual. Having improved the complexion, it is then necessary to use an ounce of prevention, which is surely worth many pounds of cure. The main thing to remember is that a good complexion is dependent upon good health, and that good health is dependent upon plenty of exercise in the fresh air, attention to the diet, to the condition of the bowels and the kidneys.

ADVICE ON SOCIAL CUSTOMS

AN OUNCE OF THOUGHT

DO YOU think first or afterward? Do you plan your actions as you would your Sunday dinner? Or do you act entirely on your impulse? Only the man or woman who can trust to his or her impulses should act on them. Nine times out of ten it is better to think first, for thoughtlessness is the basis of most discourtesy. It is seldom that an ill-mannered person acts so often to be deliberately discourteous; more often it is just a lack of thoughtful consideration that prompts or is the reason for bad manners.

Do you think of the stranger in your midst when you turn the conversation toward old large topics or the crowd used to enjoy until there is scarcely an intelligible bit of the conversation which the stranger can understand? Or, if one examined one's social conscience in the entire conversation of a party should be directed to the one new member, but at least one should be made to feel the crowd into the conversation or at least to offer excuses if the conversation has drifted too far from general topics. Or are you guilty of thoughtless whispering? Every one knows that whispering before others is a decided breach of etiquette, for the side remarks in a lowered tone or the whisper about some one or something entirely out of the range of hearing will make a bystander feel uncomfortable. Another thoughtlessness equally embarrassing to the listener is a conversation in the hall or in a room where one can hear the entire conversation of a party should be directed to the one new member, but at least one should be made to feel the crowd into the conversation or at least to offer excuses if the conversation has drifted too far from general topics. Accident at the Table

MY DEAR MR. SYMES:—I am writing you up something about a table accident or up something only to myself. I am a constant reader.

One day drops a fork or piece of silver at the table one should not pick it up, but should ask for a clean piece of silver. An accident should be made as inconspicuous as possible. If one is near the hostess, a murmured word of apology is correct, but otherwise it is best to wait until after the meal to apologize for the carelessness.

COMMON SENSE in the HOME

EDITED by MARION HARLAND

PICKLES FOR FAMILY USE.

CHEAP materials cannot be used in making pickles if you desire satisfactory results. The vinegar and spices must be of the best; the vegetables or fruits must be firm and good. All of these must be picked over carefully in the search for decayed portions and soft or speckled spots must be cut out or the product rejected.

The same rule which should prevail in all cookery must be observed in putting up pickles. All ingredients should be in the house and assembled in the kitchen or pantry before the work is begun. The jars or glasses must be inspected to see that tops and rubbers are in good condition, and all must be well rinsed in clean washing water.

Preparation for the work by dressing to fit the part. Put on old clothes which will not be injured by the splashed juice of fruits or vegetables, or by a dash of vinegar. Place your chair in a cool corner while you are peeling or cutting up materials and try in every way to make yourself as comfortable as possible. Pickling is always more or less hard work, and it is only the part of wisdom to take from it every disadvantage you can. Don't undertake too much at a time, but plan to do a smaller amount at once and to do it with a minimum of fatigue and nerve wear.

The best preserving kettle I know is porcelain lined, although I have had satisfactory results with one of copper. If you use the latter, take care that it is thoroughly scoured before using it, and be sure there is no suspicion of verdigris about the inside. With almost any kettle it is safe to take the precaution of laying an inverted plate in the bottom. This saves the likelihood of a scorch, which would spoil the entire batch of pickles.

CUCUMBER PICKLES.
If you have your own garden it may seem best to gather the cucumbers a few at a time, as they attain the right size. In this case keep a crock of brine in a cellar or cool pantry and drop the cucumbers into the brine as they are gathered, looking over the stock every two or three days to see that none is softening. On the other hand, if you buy the vegetables or are able to gather a large quantity at once, you are spared this care. The cucumbers should be about the length of the little finger. When they are small and of uniform size they make a better and more attractive pickle than when of varying proportions.

The first stage in pickling the cucumbers is to make a brine so strong that it will bear up an egg; put the cucumbers in this and leave them there for three days. At the end of this time pour off the brine, take out the cucumbers and lay them on a clean cloth to dry, rinse out the crock, and put the cucumbers back in it, covering them with fresh, cool water. Leave them in this for twenty-four hours.

Prepare the vinegar for the pickles by allowing to each quart of sharp cider vinegar one tablespoon of brown sugar, one dozen black peppers, one dozen whole cloves, three allspices, and three blades of mace. Put all in a preserving kettle, bring to a boil and cook for ten minutes. Take the cucumbers from the water, drain and wipe dry, turn them into the boiling vinegar and leave them in just long enough to become hot. Do not permit them to boil. Scald out a stone crock, set it on a wet cloth that it may not crack, and put pickles and vinegar into it. Cover closely, set away for three days, drain off the vinegar and heat it to scalding, and pour it back on the pickles. Repeat this process every week for a month and at the final scalding add another teaspoon of sugar for each quart of vinegar. Put the pickles away to ripen for six weeks or two months before using them.

PICKLED PEPPER HASH.
Select five large green peppers and one red one, cut them open and remove the seeds with a stick. If you handle them they will burn your fingers. Chop the peppers fine. Chop also one good head of white cabbage which you have examined carefully for slugs and from which you have removed all withered or decayed leaves. Put minced cabbage and peppers together and mix well. Stir into them three tablespoons of salt and one of sugar, two tablespoons of brown mustard seed, and enough good cider vinegar to cover all. Stir well together, put into jars, screw down the tops, and put aside. It will be ready to use in a few days.

CHOW-CHOW.
For chow-chow prepare equal proportions of small cucumbers, string beans, little white onions, a cauliflower, and green tomatoes. Slice the tomatoes, divide the cauliflower into clusters, peel the onions, stem and string the beans. With these put four small red peppers of the long variety and place the vegetables in a stoneware crock, alternating horseradish, and one each of whole cloves, whole black peppers, whole mace, celery seed, and white mustard seed. Bring all to a boil, cook for five minutes, drop in the pickles, and let them simmer for five minutes after the boil is regained.

Take the pickles out with a skimmer and put into a stone crock and pour the vinegar over them, leaving them in this, the jar covered, for two days. Drain off the vinegar, then return it to the fire with a tablespoon of curry powder and let it boil up once. Pour it again over the pickles and when these are cool pack them into small jars and screw down the tops. They will be ready for use by the end of a month, but are even better after longer keeping.

STUFFED PEPPER PICKLE.
Select firm green peppers of uniform size, cut a slit in each near the top and remove the seeds with a stick or a small knife. Fill the peppers with salt, lay them in a jar, and cover them with cold water, leaving them in this for two days. Drain them and lay them in fresh water for a day longer. Make a stuffing for them in the following proportions: one teaspoon each of grated horseradish and of finely chopped cabbage; one teaspoon each of ground mustard, whole black peppers, celery seed, and minced onion; half a teaspoon each of ground ginger, mace, and nutmeg; one tablespoon of salad oil and a teaspoon of white sugar. Mix all well together.

Fill the peppers with this stuffing, sew them up with white thread, pack in an earthen jar, and fill with boiling vinegar. Leave them for a week, drain off the vinegar, heat it to scalding again, and pour it back on the peppers. Cover and leave them to simmer for at least three months before using.

GREEN TOMATO PICKLE.

Slice a gallon of unpeeled green tomatoes; peel and chop six large white onions. Put a layer of the tomatoes into the preserving kettle, sprinkle them with the onion and half of a mixture consisting of two cups of sugar, one tablespoon each of salt, black pepper, and ground mustard and two teaspoons each of ground allspice and cloves. Repeat the layer of tomatoes, onions, and seasonings; pour in one quart of cider vinegar, heat the material slowly, and stew for three-quarters of an hour. Put up in small jars and seal. Keep three months before using.

PICKLED PEACHES.

Peel firm white freestone peaches, dropping each into cold water as it is pared. Take the fruit from the water, weigh it; allow three pounds of sugar and two cups of vinegar to six pounds of fruit. Stick a whole clove in each peach, arrange the fruit and sugar in layers in a preserving kettle, and put the vinegar on to heat in another vessel with two tablespoons each of cloves, cinnamon, and mace to the six pounds of fruit. The spices must be tied up in a muslin bag and left in the vinegar for five minutes after it comes to a boil. When the sugar and peaches have stewed together for five minutes after boiling the vinegar may be added to them and all boiled gently until the peaches are tender, but not broken. Take them out then with a skimmer, spread on six plates, and boil the syrup until thick. This will require about fifteen minutes. Put the peaches in jars, turn in the syrup, and seal with white bottles.

PICKLED PEARS.

Use small firm pears, peel them, but do not remove the stems, and follow the same course as for pickled peaches.

Farrar in "Carmen" Will Be Seen Here in November. "The Birth of a Nation" in December.

THE greatest moving picture plays ever produced will be shown in Atlanta this fall and winter. In several of them, the most famous operatic and theatrical stars in the world will take the principal parts.

Geraldine Farrar herself will appear here about November 1 in a moving picture production of "Carmen" for which she is posing now in California at a salary of $2 a minute.

Farrar sang in "Carmen" last May at the auditorium at $5 a seat. She will play this November at the Grand at 10 cents.

Pavlova, the greatest dancer in the world, will be seen here in an elaborate film called "Finella," produced from the Italian opera, "Masanello." The time when this film will be shown here has not been announced. But, like Farrar, she will appear at the usual moving picture prices.

During the week beginning December 6, "The Birth of a Nation," which was photographed at a cost of half a million dollars, will be shown at the Atlanta theater. Prices of $2 and $2.50 are being charged in New York to see this picture. The admission price here will be $1.50.

Mary Pickford will appear here November 8 in "Madame Butterfly," Marguerite Clark will play "Mollie Make-Believe," November 28. Mrs. Fiske will be seen September 8 in "Vanity Fair." Such books as "William J. Locke's "Beloved Vagabond" will be given in their entirety.

FIERY METEOR IS SEEN IN SAVANNAH

A METEOR believed to have weighed 10 or 15 pounds was seen July 30 in Savannah. Otis Ashmore, superintendent of schools, saw the phenomenon.

"The meteor appeared in the southeast," he said, "and dropped downward to the southern horizon. I was on my porch at the time; it was the largest I have ever seen."

"Presenting a beautiful appearance, a mass of bright blue and white color, it fell quite slowly indicating a great distance intervening between the meteor and Savannah."

"Meteors," said Mr. Ashmore, in describing the fiery travelers of the heavens, "are small stony masses composed chiefly of iron and nickel ores that revolve around the sun in orbits of their own, like the earth."

"They vary in size from a small grain of sand to masses of a thousand pounds in weight or more. Their average size is probably much greater than that of an English pea. The one I saw I think weighed ten or fifteen pounds."

"These meteors move around the sun sometimes singly, more often in groups like a flock of birds. Owing to their small size they are not visible except when they come in contact with the earth."

"Their velocity through space is very great, usually more than thirty miles a second, or more than a hundred times as fast as the swiftest cannon ball. As long as they are moving in outer space they meet with no resistance, but they sometimes pass very near the earth and plunge, with sickening speed, into its atmosphere."

"The friction thus engendered creates great heat which instantly fuses the meteoric mass, giving rise to the bright flash that is observed. If the mass is a small one it is usually consumed before it reaches the earth, but if a large one, it sometimes reaches the solid surface and plunges into the ground or into the ocean."

"These stony masses have occasionally been dug out of the ground soon after falling, and are found to be hot and giving evidence of the fiery orbit through which they have passed in the atmosphere."

The manager of a film corporation with southeast headquarters in Atlanta, said last week:

"The picture business here this fall and winter will be greater than ever before. As it is, the rental of the films distributed each week through the Atlanta offices amounts to about $10,000."

"I believe that the tendency is toward better pictures at higher prices. In two years from now I expect the price of admission at all moving pictures to be from 25 cents to two dollars, and for the pictures themselves to surpass theatrical productions in all details."
